

April 5, 2019

To Whom It May Concern,

Austin Treherne has been an intern with the NWIRC for over a year. He approached me during his junior year and wanted to spend time learning about entrepreneurship while acting as a communications intern for us and some of our clients. He worked to help our clients develop comprehensive public relations strategies, including social media and traditional PR. Being an intern for a startup entrepreneur has a unique set of challenges that Austin worked hard to understand and incorporate those difficulties into the strategies he did for our clients. He worked directly with the NWIRC to help with some of our social media needs as well as doing photography and video for different events we host. I have enjoyed working with him, he is always engaging and likes to contribute to group projects.

Sincerely,

Lara Smith
Entrepreneurial Ecosystem Catalyst and Program Manager
NW Innovation Resource Center
2200 Rimland Dr #210, Bellingham, WA 98226
Lsmith@nwirc.com